

DAY OF IMMUNOLOGY 2011

Join us on

29th April 2011

for a

BBQ Breakfast

7 AM - 9 AM

School of Veterinary & Biomedical Sciences Courtyard

*Hot bacon/sausage muffins will be available for a gold coin donation.
The Coffee Cart will be open from 7 AM*

Later,

Join us for an informative series of short talks highlighting the significant contributions of a selection of preeminent immunologists

“The Pioneers of Immunology”

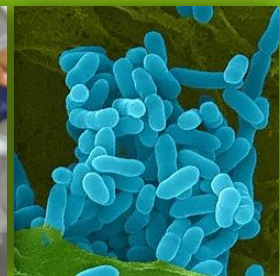

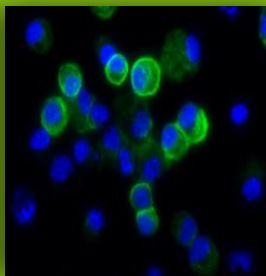

1 PM - 2 PM

DB045-002, Medical Lecture Theatre

- Introduction Professor Wayne Hein
(Head of School, Dean of Veterinary Science, School of Veterinary & Biomedical Sciences)
- Ilya Mechnikov Ms Kelly Hodgson
(PhD student, Infectious Diseases and Immunopathogenesis Research Group)
- Sir Peter Medawar Ms Rebecca McBriarty (undergraduate student, Biomedical Science)
- Sir Frank Macfarlane Burnet Mr Angus McDonnell
(undergraduate student, Medicine)

INFECTIOUS DISEASES AND IMMUNOPATHOGENESIS
RESEARCH GROUP

About the Day of Immunology

The first Day of Immunology (DoI) was held April 29, 2005 in Europe. It was brought to life by the European Federation of Immunological Societies, who noticed that although the public are very interested in health, people without a scientific background often miss the relevance of immunological research and findings. Australia was invited to join the DoI in 2007. We at JCU are very keen to commemorate the DoI and share current clinical and experimental immunological knowledge with our fellow Australians on the DoI. For more information visit <http://www.immunology.org.au/wdi.html>